

Me and my family and particularly my girls have been listening to K-LOVE for years. The positive format and content of this radio station has helped and encouraged me so much on a daily basis to raise my children the way they should be, not the way the declining moral views of the rest of the world seem to be telling me to. I know many other families who feel the same way and would be at a real loss without the value this station provides. It's a wonderful experience to hear my girls singing songs without four letter words and songs of love and respect for one another instead of some of the other music that really alarms and sometimes evens frightens me, because of the messages that are sending and leaving in the minds of our children. The FCC rule changes being discussed concern me from the ability of a station, that relies entirely on public funding, to maintain it's current presence let alone inhibit it's expansion capabilities to communities that could really benefit. I am also very skeptical about a Neighborhood Advisory Board being able to effectively represent what I think is an extremely valuable commodity to the community. Please give my opinion proper consideration, if not for myself, for the children that are growing up and need proper encouragement and values to become the leaders we will rely on tomorrow.

Thank You
